

Scripture Reading: Psalm 33:20-22

We wait in hope for the Lord; he is our help and our shield. In him, our hearts rejoice, for we trust in his holy name. May your unfailing love be with us, Lord, even as we put our hope in you.

Many conversions are easily attainable in today's technological world: meters to feet, Italian to French, and even combustion engines to EVs. Likewise, we routinely unbundle unseen air and wire transmissions to voice, pictures and data. We often rejoice at these transitions but frequently curse the dropped signals if we are honest.

The unfailing love for us by Christ does not hiccup, waiver, or weaken. On the contrary, his signal is steady, solid, and unfailing.

Prayer: Dear Lord, during this Lenten season of reflection, as we "take on" and "give forth," we open our hearts to you. We hear your song of love and gain inner peace, for we trust in your ways. We actively pray for help, forgiveness, and inclusion in your holy plan of hope.

~ Submitted by Fred Markert for the Eleventh Reading of Lent